NEW ORLEANS, La., May 20.—The remains of Jeff Davis, the president of the confederacy, were removed from Louisiana and taken by rail to their final resting place at Richmond, Va. The memorial hall in which the body lay in state, was visited all Saturday night and Sunday by a crowd of citizens and thousands of slaves from the humble laborer to the haughty aristocrat, all vying with each other in the attempt, in some measure show their respect for the deceased who were killed in the line of duty. One from the state which he loved so well and in which his last moments were spent. The floral offerings were very handsome. There were marmosets, bears and crows of all colors, the Confederate colors and came respectively from the veteran Confederate States cavalry, Lombard division from the Army of the Tennessee and from the Ladies Confederate Memorial Association. The remains of the Veterans were represented in a wreath of immortelles, a yellow circle trimmed with blue with crossed cannons in the center and the name of the commandment in a scroll around the wreath. The design, "Be with the Confederates."

crate survivors' Association of Augusta was a wreath of white immortelles with "C. S. A. Augusta" in red immortelles above and below the circle. As the hour drew nigh for the last sad ceremonies to take place, the crowds at the hall increased and ever available inch of the banquetette for blocks distant was held by persons anxious to catch a glimpse of the mournful procession which was soon to pass.

Gov. Murphy J. Foster and Lieut.

tion. Partage, accompanied by their staff, reached the hall at 4:30. They were followed by Rev. Gordon Bakewell, a confederate veteran and old friend of Mr. Davis. A few minutes before 5 o'clock, Miss Winnie Davis and her sister, Mrs. Hayes, arrived and took seats on the platform. Both ladies were attired in black.

Miss Davis was escorted by Mr. Hayes and Mrs. Hayes by Mr. J. U. Payne. On the platform there were Mayo

Gov. Foster, in eloquent terms, referred to the many virtues of the deceased. He said that the name of Jefferson Davis would go down in history linked with the names of Lincoln

His excellency regretted that the state of Louisiana was to lose the remains of such a distinguished man. He felt sure however that the old veterans of Virginia would secretly take care of the trust reposed in them. President Gilmore, of the Army of Northern Virginia, read letters from Mrs. Davis authorizing the transfer of her husband's remains. Rev. Gordon Baker well concluded the ceremonies at the

The caisson, on which rested the tattered and torn battle flag won by the First Mississippi regiment at Buena Vista was taken by twelve members of the United Confederate association and carried from the hall to the caisson of the Washington artillery. The procession was then formed in the following order:

First division—Brig. Gen. Boreman, marshal of the military escort, consisting of the first military district, band of honor, consisting of the Richmond escort, family of deceased in carriages; carriage containing Hon J. Taylor Ellison, president and committee of Jefferson Division Monument association of Richmond.

Third division.—Civic association, officials, members of the bench and bar, inmates of soldiers' home in Washington. The remains were taken the Louisville & Nashville depot where a special train was in waiting, and the body, accompanied by an escort left for Richmond.

More of Peary's Plans.
ST. JOHN, N. F., May 29.—The steamer Falcon leaves here June 15 for Thule, where she will take on board the Peary exploring expedition to Greenland. The expedition will consist of sixteen persons, including Mr. Peary, who again faces the winter in the regions. Twelve persons will remain in Greenland, and the others will return. The equipment includes house, a machine, a launch, dogs, and the dog keys which were used in the first expedition. The party will remain in the northern regions two winters and conduct a series of exploring expeditions in Interior and North Greenland, perhaps as far as the north pole. The steamer, after landing, returns here in September.

Nansen's Polar Expedition.
CHRISTIANA, May 28.—Dr. Nansen's polar expedition, it is now announced, will start on its voyage of discovery on June 20. All the members who are to take part in it have already arrived, and the final preparations will now

Russian and Polish Immigrants.
New York, May 26.—The steamship Rusoda, from Havre, arrived Sunday with about 900 Russian and Polish immigrants who were transferred to Ellis Island. It was found necessary to hold the for a second examination. A great many of them were filthy, some destitute and others in search of friends from whom they had no addresses.

Killed by His Brother-in-Law.
HUNTINGTON, Pa., May 23.—John M. Tinsleton, chief of police of Mapleton of this county, was shot and killed by his brother-in-law, Henry Smith, Saturday night.
